Enough or not, it was used as a window as people work, employed by Human Resources Departments in recruitment, progress and shoot from half of the 20th century. The 16 "types" focus on Jungiana psychology as a foundation to understand the "parts" of one's mind. Once these parts are classified as having specific features, an acronym of four letters is used to classify types. e While the methods used by myers-briggs analysis have their detractors and competitors, bear, with uses not only In the corporate world. Myers-briggs types are used by some online dating sites, matchmakers and as part of the adhesion exams by private clubs. When types have been designed around how human mind works, animal minds are not different from human minds, in key modes.
