Lesson 14: Prenatal Care (Health Teaching)
Prepared by: Health Practitioner & Nurse RN, NCC
Clinical Instructor

> Leopold, Maneuvers – are a systematic methods of observation and palpation to determine fetal position, presentation, lie and attitude which helps in predicting course of labor

- Preparatory Steps:
1. Palpate with warm hands.
 2. Use palms, not fingertips.
 3. Woman should lie in supine position with knees flexed slightly.
 4. Done with empty bladder.

Procedure:

1st Maneuver

- to determine presenting part
- facing the head part of the pregnant woman, palpate for fetal part found in the fundus to determine presentation.
- (a hard, smooth, ballotable mass at the fundus means fetus is breech presentation)

2nd Maneuver

- to determine fetal back
- still facing the head part of the mother, palpate side to locate the fetal back.
- a feel smooth hard resistant surface is the back part. (best place to hear the FHT)
- a number of angular nodulation are knees and elbows.

3rd Maneuver

- to determine engagement and mobility of presenting part.
- still facing the head part of the mother, grasp the lower portion of the abdomen just above the symphysis pubis to find out degree of engagement.

4th Maneuver

- to determine fetal attitude and descent.
- Now facing the feet of the mother, press fingers downward on both sides of the uterus above the inguinal ligaments to determine degree of flexion of fetal head.

Politics principles that guide actions and decisions. Sexual harassment policy. Short-term disability leave policy. Anti-discrimination policy. When writing a set of nursing policies and procedures, hospital or clinical management can look at examples of health care policies that align with patient-protection laws and the standard of care for the conditions handled by each department. Health care procedures are the standard steps that nurses are to take when facing specific scenarios. Provide an ASL interpreter for all deaf and hard-of-hearing patients. Procedure for disputing human resources decisions. Typically, an organizationeAAAs procedures are derived from its policies. Often, the link between a clinic or hospitaleAAAs nursing policies and procedures is fairly easy to recognize. Any PRINTED version of these documents are only accurate up to the date of printing. No part of these documents may be reproduced in any form for publication without permission of Regina QueAAAApelle Health Region. Health care procedures can be complex and can involve multiple steps for nurses to follow. In this section: Guidance & Regulations Preview Preview The RQHR Nursing policies and procedures, developed by RQHR nursing staff, are evidence-informed and based on best practice guidelines. A well-written policies and procedures manual can protect nurses, doctors and other hospital staff from potentially facing medical malpractice claims from patients who are injured by health care provider error or failure to comply with the standard of care for their conditions. Regina QueAAAApelle Health Region cannot guarantee the currency or accuracy of any printed policy and accepts no responsibility for use of this material by any person or organization not associated with the Health Region. In many cases, hospitals turn to medical lawyers to write these parts of their policy manuals. Policies are guiding principles, while procedures are actionable For example, a hospitaleAAAs EMTALA policy should exactly state that the hospital will act in accordance with the law when facing a patient with emergency medical needs rather than simply stating that the hospital complies with EMTALA regulations. For example, a clinic that includes respecting patientseAAA religious and cultural sensitivities in its list of policies might make asking all new patients about their specific cultural and religious needs a standard procedure. In a hospital or clinical setting, a comprehensive set of nursing policies and procedures protects the nurses and the patients from confusion and harm. Nurses and other health care professionals are legally required to comply with certain federal laws, such as the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA). Examples of health care policies to implement in hospital and clinical settings include: Always consider the patienteAAAs religious and cultural needs when administering care. Report all falls, spills and other accidents as soon as possible. The documents are intended to provide guidance to nursing staff in the delivery of safe and effective patient care. Pay period schedule. schedule.

01/07/2012 - It is essential to put patient at ease by answering questions, being sensitive to patient's fear level, being gentle with technique, and speaking with unburied, authoritative, but quiet voice. Let the patient know that venipuncture procedure may be a little painful, but of short duration. Never say "This won't hurt a bit." Presumptive Eligibility Policy. Section 700.
