

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Thop tv pro app

So you like to watch a little TV here and there do you? Or perhaps a lot of TV? There are so many apps out there streaming TV shows to your Android phone, but not all of them deliver a great user experience, or have the best content. Finding the best TV apps can be a bit boring compared to, well, actually watching the shows. So we’ve put together a list of 5 great apps for your Android phone.Many of these apps come from television’s biggest players because they’re the ones offering the best content and the biggest variety as well. You’ll notice YouTube didn’t make the cut. It’s not that it’s a bad app, but we’re going more for production quality and navigation and less for cat videos. Not that there’s anything wrong with cat videos, of course.I know what you’re thinking. “Just give us the apps already! We’ve got TV to watch!” OK, there’s no need to get pushy, you can click to the next page at any time. You know, it’s a free country and all.One of the biggest players in the TV to smartphone game is obviously Netflix. Although Netflix doesn’t release exactly how much content they have, the number of titles is reported to be around 60,000 -- which includes their movies. The app is free, but requires a subscription to their streaming service.As far as video quality goes, Netflix is one of the best for streaming your favorite TV shows. The video quality and sound are great and you can pick up watching where you left off on another device (which is great for those long meetings at work or awkward family reunions). Don’t worry about trying to search for titles on your phone’s screen, the app will tap into your instant queue, and show you recommendations and viewing history as well. Unlike the Web version, however, you won’t be able to search for actors or directors.One of the biggest complaints about the Netflix app for Android is the amount of scrolling you have to do if you have a large queue. There isn’t a button to go to the top of your list or a way to quickly scroll through the whole queue. Another drawback is the lack of current programming. If you’re looking to watch TV shows that are newer than last season, you’re probably out of luck. But the sheer number of other TV shows available, plus the fact that you can watch multiple seasons back to back, make the Netflix app for Android a great one indeed.For those with a voracious TV appetite, Hulu is probably already one of your entertainment BFFs. The Hulu Plus app allows Hulu monthly subscribers to watch all the content their site has to offer, right on your phone. As with Netflix, Hulu won’t say how many TV shows they have, but some estimates put it at about 43,000 episodes and almost 1,700 TV shows. Having that much television on-demand for a small monthly fee should keep any TV-lover warm at night.One of the apps’ drawbacks is that it doesn’t support every device that runs Android, even if you have a supported version of Android. so for some smartphone owners it just won’t work.Unlike Netflix and some other TV apps, the Hulu Plus app offers recent TV programming. You can find shows from NBC, FOX, ABC, National Geographic, MTV, PBS and lots of others. You can watch the full current season of many shows as well.If you haven’t subscribed yet, you can try one month of Hulu Plus for free. It should be noted that although you pay for the Hulu Plus subscription each month, you’ll still see a few ads during shows. Yes, it’s lame -- we know. But for all the shows you have access to it far outweighs the few ads and the low monthly subscription fee.If you’re looking for another free TV streaming service, you may want to check out the TV.com app. This app provides content from CBS, the CW, CNET, CBS News, CBS Sports...come to think of it they probably should have named it the “C App.” There’s also content from ET and Showtime. The TV.com app allows you to watch full episodes over cellular and Wi-Fi connections and select programming based on the channel you’re looking for.The app has some current shows from the CBS lineup, so if you have more important things to do than, let’s say, watch the latest episode of “CSI” then you’re covered. You can also watch older shows like “MacGyver” and “Hawaii Five-O.” Which may come in handy if you’re trapped in the trunk of a car with only your cell phone, a piece of twine and a Swiss Army knife. MacGyver to the rescue!Obviously with free apps and free TV shows, you’ll sacrifice a little time watching ads, but so goes the free app world. Keep in mind that although they have a lot of full episodes in the app, there are also a lot of videos that are just short clips.On the free side of the app world, there’s Crackle. This one made it on our list because, well, it’s free. Free to download and free to watch, although you’ll find a few commercial in the middle of your TV shows. With Crackle adding 20 TV episodes and movies each month, you can check back frequently for new content. You’ll find most of the same content you can get on Crackle’s Web version as you can on the app, but not all. Crackle also has a handful of original programming on its app as well.Streaming a TV show is doable from 3G and 4G connections, and if for some reason you have to stop watching your favorite episode of “Sanford and Son,” Crackle will remember where you left off. Although Crackle comes up a bit short in the amount of TV shows it has, it’s one of the best apps that won’t cost you a monthly subscription. So there won’t be any of that, “Why am I paying this?” buyer’s remorse you sometimes get with other apps. Most Android phones won’t have a problem using the app, although old versions of the Android operating system may run into some problems.The HBO Go app is exactly that: HBO on the go. With this app you won’t miss HBO original programming or the 1,400 shows that HBO says you have access to. The streaming service comes free with your HBO subscription and the app is free to download. If you like building video lists, and who doesn’t, you can set up a watch list on the app for your favorite shows. You won’t have to wait long to catch new programming on the app either; once an episode airs on HBO it’s available in the app within 24 hours. Even if you missed entire seasons of past shows, you can fire up the app and start catching up on the shows at any time.Most of the content in the app is HD, so if your phone supports it you’ll have an amazing viewing experience. For TV junkies who want to know all the ins-and-outs of characters, sets, and director’s thoughts, you’re in luck. HBO Go gives you access to behind-the-scenes videos of your favorite shows, commentary on certain episodes, and pictures from the sets. There are enough special features to help you make the jump from simply liking a show to having your friends think you need to get out more often.I honestly didn’t realize just how many options were out there to stream TV shows on my phone. I came across many more than the five listed here, and it was overwhelming to whittle the list down to just these few choices. As someone who doesn’t have cable, I already use a lot of alternative sources to catch up the shows I watch, but there are so many more options than I had even come across before. If you want to watch a French news program, you can. Sports from other countries? No problem. There are literally multiple apps for almost any conceivable television programming.Related ArticlesBroida, Rick. “Crackle: Free Movies, TV Shows on Android Devices.” CNET. June 21, 2011. (July 11, 2012) Kristie. “Hulu Plus vs. Vudu.” Gadget Review. April 14, 2012. (July 12, 2012) . “Netflix app.” Nov. 2, 2011. (July 12, 2012) . “TV.com.” (July 12, 2012) Play. “HBO Go.” (Jul 12, 2012) Go. “Game of Thrones Interactive Features.” (July 13, 2012) Michael. “Gaps in Netflix’s Content Likely to Persist.” Yahoo News. April 9, 2012. (July 12, 2012) Philip. “TV.com Review.” Macworld. Oct. 27, 2011. (July 12, 2012) News. “Review: HBO GO.” May 4, 2011. (July 12, 2012) The new Apple TV is here, which means it’s time to start downloading some apps. There’s all kinds of new stuff to search through, so let’s take a look at the best of the best. Unlike iOS or the Mac App Store, there’s no direct way to link to Apple TV apps if they’re for Apple TV only (we’ll link to the iOS version below, since most of these apps support Universal purchase, which means if you have them on your iOS device they’ll be free on the Apple TV as well), so you’ll need to just search for these in the store from the TV itself. Beyond that, the store’s terribly organized and hard to navigate, so discovering new apps is a pain. So, let’s take a look at some of the most popular apps alongside a few everyone’s likely looking for:TVVideo StreamingOtherCarrot WeatherHouzzNoon PacificStorehouseYummyZillowZovaOf course, there are plenty of other apps, but the above should get you started. It’s still the early days of tvOS, so expect lots of bugs and about a million different fireplace apps, which seem to be the tvOS equivalent of the fart app. Television – you either love it or hate it. Or love-hate it? Anyway, we all have a deep, if sometimes ambivalent relationship with our TV sets. We use TV to relax, to get informed, to stay in touch, to learn things, to lose time, to forget about problems, and the list can go on and on. It’s no wonder that many have tried (and mostly failed) to offer a truly portable TV-watching device. And then the smartphone came along, bringing the brains of silicon and the looks of hi-res screens to the mainstream consumer. The increasingly-large smartphones these days can double as TVs without problem, provided you have the right apps. So, for all of you TV maniacs, we bring you the best apps that will transform your Android device into a TV, so you can enjoy your favorite sitcom, ball game, or reality TV show wherever you are. SPB TVSPB TV is a multi-platform app that lets you watch live TV shows from around the world, for free. With over 120 channels to choose from, this app is one of the best apps out there for watching your favorite TV shows. Navigating through the channels is simple and you can adjust the quality of the streams from high to low. SPB TV is also great for watching video on-demand TV shows. Other notable features include a wide selection of public channels, quick channel previews, fast channel switching, integrated TV guide, picture in picture mode, and on-screen controls. SPB TV for Android on AppBrain Crackle – Movies & TVAnother awesome Android app that will turn your Android into a TV is Crackle. Crackle – Movies & TV lets you watch full-length TV shows and movies on your Android smartphone and tablet for free. We love the fact that this app is capable of streaming high quality videos, with over 20 new TV episodes and movies added each month. And we are talking about unlimited on-demand videos across different genres. While some might complain about the occasional commercials, considering that it’s totally free, downloading the Crackle is well worth it. Crackle is currently available in the U.S., Canada, U.K., and Australia. Crackle – Movies & TV for Android on AppBrain ln2Streams – Streaming TVDid you know that you can actually watch any TV show on your Android device? Thanks to the ln2Streams – Streaming TV app for Android, you can now gain access to all of your favorite TV shows in a snap. The app has over 5000 TV episodes ready for your viewing pleasure. The only downside is that you will be required to subscribe to ln2Streams’ service. The app, however, is free to download. If you’ve already tried the service on your computer, you’ll easily see the many advantages of utilizing this app. ln2Streams – Streaming TV for Android on AppBrain TV.comYou will love the cool TV.com app for Android. TV.com lets you access CBS TV channels like CNBC, CW, ET, CBS Showtime, CBS Sports, and CNET, without the painful subscription fees. The app essentially delivers the whole TV experience onto your Android smartphone or tablet. If you are looking for great shows including your favorite sitcoms, then the TV.com app is exactly what you need. The new version is now faster, with a newly improved layout design that provides easy access to a lot of your favorite TV episodes. And yes, the video quality is excellent as well. If you’ve got lots of time to kill, download the TV.com app for Android right now. TV.com for Android on AppBrain TV Listings for AndroidiTV Listings for Android is a fast and easy app that will let you watch over 13,000 TV channels from the U.S. We love this app for its simple design and functionality. No complex UI here, only pure streaming. TV Listings for Android covers all types of shows – over the air, cable and satellite. Notable features include tabs, movie ratings, reminders, filtering, and searches. TV Listings for Android is a great app that will definitely turn your phone or tablet into a mobile TV. TV Listings for Android on AppBrain IMDb Movies & TVOf course, we can’t forget about IMDb and its dedicated mobile app for Android. IMDb is the most reliable source of information when it comes to movies and TV shows. The IMDb Movies & TV app for Android allows you to search over 2 million movies and TV titles, complete with helpful reviews and ratings, to help you stay away from those boring duds. We personally love IMDb’s high quality movie trailers and movie showtime schedules. You can also view TV listings for your own local time zone and watch recaps from previous shows. You can even search for DVD and Blu-ray titles by scanning a barcode or by taking cover art pictures. Sounds good does it? IMDb Movies & TV for Android on AppBrain World Streaming TVThe World Streaming TV app is sitting at the top spot on Google Play for the Video and Media apps category. The new version of the app has undergone multiple bug fixes and it should work smoothly on any Android smartphone and tablet. True to its name, the app has a huge list of channels for you to choose from, from more than 70 different countries. Now you can watch your favorite TV shows, matches, or world news, 24 hours a day. The user interface is simple enough to get used to in a matter of minutes. You can save your shows and channels by bookmarking them and you can also join the WSTV Community for suggestions and support. World Streaming TV for Android on AppBrain ShowTimes – Series GuideSurely, you don’t want to miss a single episode of your favorite TV show. Whether it’s Game of Thrones or Big Bang Theory, you can keep up using your Android device and the ShowTimes app. So what makes this app special? While it’s not really an app that will allow you to stream shows, it’s perfect for staying updated with the latest episodes released on TV. We just love the simplicity of the app. Navigation is easy and the relevant results are delivered blazing fast via the search feature. The ShowTimes app for Android also features a widget that will display your shows and add a reminder to your calendar. There’s also a backup option to save your shows to your SD card. There you have it – our list of hand-picked best apps that let you enjoy TV on the go. Which one’s your favorite? Did we forget about a cool Android TV app?AppsAndroid TV, Best Apps, TV, TV Shows